INTRODUCTION

A revisitation of sculpture, an extension of its three dimensionality and attunement to body, context and narrative, is at the heart of Yu Ji's (b. 1985, Shanghai) practice. Her work, that spans installation, video and performance, exists as a series of interventions, both into space and creating it, taking medium and materiality as a starting point. Creating her own language, Yu Ji enlivens her visual sentences with a rich vocabulary rooted in form, objects, humanity and the everyday.

Running throughout Yu Ji's sculptural work is an acknowledgement of the body. The cast of a limb, the outline of a body part - Yu Ji creates delicate yet weighty anatomical and amorphous objects that evoke a sense of eery mechanical disengagement, as if an alter human had been created then pilfered. Consider, for example, 'Altar the Ghost' (2018), in which, amidst a sea of black sand, there are a series of cast and cast-away objects. Upon closer contemplation, one identifies a hand, a structure that resembles a torso; the tones vary from a warm beige to grey. The titles of each work emphasise the physical and sense of absence, incorporating terms such as 'flesh' and 'ghost', pointing to a spectral existence. Heightening a sense of tender presence is the permeation of balance: each object is mounted, hooked, reliant upon another element, a visualisation that is emphasised by the incorporation of towering and leaning pillars, each of which have an odd levity given their materials of cement and iron.

This play between depiction, material and weight exists throughout Yu Ji's practice. Referencing back to the earlier work 'Green Hair Monster' (2016), for example, there are a series of sculptures, gilded by a faint dark green moss, hanging from metallic threads. Despite their reference as 'Still Life', they rely on gravity to ever so slightly hover, a movement that contrasts with the monumental rootedness of 'Green Hair Monster 1601'. Similar to 'Altar the Ghost', there are a series of contraptions, straps, pushes and pulls, holding the elements together, a tightening of bounds and grip. There is additionally, through the title, the reference to something or someone otherworldly. Quite distinctly, however, one notices an incorporation of living elements: beyond the moss, there is a series of fruits, trapped, wedged, hidden yet on display, existing as punctuations in her sculptural play. As such, Yu Ji mounts a tension between the living and the not, the ad hoc and purposely considered.

A rich sense of texture additionally defines Yu Ji's works. In the series of pieces created for the Hugo Boss Asia 2017 prize, for example, there is a chief work, 'Etudes-Lento IV', composed of metallic chains, that beyond their rust and chandelier-like entanglement, are oozing, dripping, amber muck. As with the moss in 'Green Hair Monster', this additional layer has an unctuousness to it that adds a sensual element to the sculpture beyond its visual impact. There is additionally a sense of organic growth, beyond the materials she otherwise uses such as cement and iron, that may typically be used for construction. Tying in with this previously identified notion of abandonment, there are a series of plastic clear sheets on which black and white images of ruins are imprinted, pulled taut across the room, ironically tugging or resting on contemporary pillars. Emphasising a sense of bygones are a series of torso casts, resting on the floor in a ring of their own rubble. In centre point, there is the film 'Passage' (2017) in which she moves through a verdant landscape.

Ultimately, Yu Ji is a rich narrator of complex relationships, between people and things, life and not, presents and bygones. Every object, installation, video is deliberate, mesmeric and subject to a palpable articulation rooted in considerations of material, texture, weight and tone. Encountering Yu Ji's work is physical and mnemonic, sparking reference points but also urging one to revisit the relationships between space, body and time, reminding each of our own historicity.

Yu Ji obtained her MA from the Department of Sculpture, College of Art of Shanghai University, in 2011. In 2008, she co-founded AM Art Space – an artist-led space in Shanghai, promoting experimentation and exchanges between artists, curators and the public. Yu Ji has exhibited globally, including the 58th Venice Biennale (2019), Tensta Konsthall, Sweden (2018), Rockbund Art Museum, Shanghai (2017), 11th Shanghai Biennale (2016), Palais de Tokyo, Paris (2014), amongst others. In 2017 Yu Ji was nominated for HUGO BOSS Asia Art Award. Upcoming exhibitions include a major solo exhibition and commission at Chisenhale Gallery, London (2020). The artist lives and works in Shanghai and Vienna.

于吉的整個藝術實踐中均可見形象塑造、材料處理及重量幻象的創造性聯繫。以早期作品《綠毛怪》(2016) 為例：這作品中的諸多以金屬線懸掛的雕塑元素上布滿暗綠色的苔蘚，既指向了一種「靜物」理念，又因地心引力的作用而輕柔地搖擺——這種微小的運動狀態與《綠毛怪1601號》的紀念碑式堅實屬性形成了鮮明的對比。也就像是《祭壇—疊影》一樣，這大型作品中滿是精巧的裝置、連接點，不斷推拉多個雕塑結構，將諸多元素緊密地、牢牢地聚集在一起。另外，作品的題目也指向了某個來自異域的人物。觀眾也可明確地意識到，活體生命的確是作品的重要組成部分：除了滿布的苔蘚之外，《綠毛怪》中也滿是或被固定或被隱藏的水果，這些水果就像是其雕塑語言中的標點符號一樣。以此，于吉在生命體及無生命體之間、在因地制宜與深思熟慮之間建立了一種張力關係。

于吉作品的另一個重要元素即是其獨特的材質肌理。在為2017年 Hugo Boss 亞洲新銳藝術家大獎創作的作品中，大型裝置《練習曲—慢板 樂章 IV》使用了金屬鏈條材料：如水晶吊燈一般在空中糾纏的鏈條上布滿了鏽跡，也在不斷地吞吐及滴落液態松香。就像是《綠毛怪》中的苔蘚，這奇異的松香元素帶有一種滿溢的粘稠感，為雕塑作品的視覺衝擊力陡添了一層感官屬性。作品因此多了一層有機生長的意味，超越了于吉常用材料——水泥及鐵——的工業建築材料性質。《練習曲—慢板樂章 IV》中還出現了一系列印制在透明材料上的黑白色古代遺跡照片，這些照片分布在展覽空間各處，不無反諷意味地懸掛、堆放在富有當代感的建築立柱上。直接放置在展覽空間地面上的，是一系列被破碎結構環繞的人體軀乾雕塑——這些雕塑性元素也強調了一種時間流逝感。在《練習曲—慢板 樂章IV》中央區域展現的，是于吉的另一件作品《通道》(2017)：在這影像作品中，藝術家本人在翠綠的自然環境里蹣跚前行。

于吉在2011年畢業於上海大學美術學院雕塑系，獲碩士學位。她於2008年在上海共同發起了上午藝術空間，為不同藝術領域的實踐者提供排演的場所。于吉在世界各地廣泛參加展覽，包括：第58屆威尼斯雙年展(2019)；滕斯塔當代藝術中心，瑞典(2018)；外灘美術館，上海(2017)；第11屆上海雙年展(2016)；東京宮，巴黎(2014)等。在2017年，于吉入圍當年 Hugo Boss 亞洲新銳藝術家大獎。于吉將於2020年在倫敦 Chisenhale藝術中心舉辦大型個展並進行委託創作。于吉生活工作於上海及維也納。

The definition of a place coincides with architecture; transliterating market into mar-git, two meeting and bonding together—an intimate relationship. A special bird call at 5 AM accompanied her over there in Phnom Penh. Gobble, gobble, om, om. Taking nine steps to the south on the balcony, sitting by an unknown corner table, observing a long line of ants on their sugar hunt; collecting fruit-skins that curled up in distinctive gestures; a disoriented mosquito, sucking blood, landing on a familiar skin—this act of pausing achieved a balance between movement and stillness. The experience of living together in Phnom Penh allowed them to re-examine the ways in which one may participate in creation. To be caught in an unfamiliar environment can indeed, at first, sharpen one’s perception, but cultural differences, language barriers, and the discomfort and anxiety that comes with the climate interfered on a daily basis; one had to also be mindful of the etiquette and emotional restraint that come with living with others. In an environment of unending heat, an environment of production and material scarcity, the will to create was held back by mundane tasks, and every participant was dealing with a unique emotional challenge. The place where they have lived together, its length, its humidity, its light and shadow change from one hour to the next; its animals, its winds, its some places may refer to a mood, a sound, or a smell, rather than a physical space.

“Evaporates” at Kiang Malingue’s Sik On Street space is organised by Yu Ji, and is the first chapter born out of the self-organised residency program in Phnom Penh, Cambodia. Featured in the exhibition are works by all artist friends who participated in PLAY KNOW ATTENTION: Casey Robbins (Vermont, New York), Ho King Man (New York, Guangzhou), Kojiro Kobayashi (Tokyo), and Boat Zhang (Tokyo, Shanghai). The artists reminisce about the space and time of the residency in Hong Kong, living together again at Kiang Malingue in the last month of 2024.

*PLAY KNOW ATTENTION was supported by M Art Foundation

Hide Me in Your Belly

28.06 - 08.09.2024
Centro Pecci, Prato, Italy
Centro Pecci, 普拉托, 義大利

Walking into “Hide Me in Your Belly,” Chinese artist Yu Ji’s inaugural solo exhibition in Italy, felt like entering a zone of intimacy. Floating pieces of fabric used for her video projections and sculptural fragments positioned along the curve of the Ala Piccola Nio (the exhibition hall within the museum) translated into an unassuming yet potent landscape in which elements were both transitional and transient, constantly shifting between the corporeal and the ethereal. Their individual and collective natures existed here as objects ex nihilo, while at the same time bearing the traces of their previous manifestations.

Far from resisting the architecture, Yu activated it from unexpected angles by using nontotemic interventions that organically blended with each other and with the space, rather than functioning as separate, hierarchic statements. The specificity of the space’s womb-like structure also resonated with the exhibition title. The “belly,” of course, often serves as a site of protection, a shelter, a safe haven where one can feel comprehended, as the Latin word comprehendere would suggest: to be mentally understood, but, most of all, to be physically contained within someone else, as in a womb. “Hide Me in Your Belly,” as a title, also suggests notions of being devoured or swallowed, which appears in the plot of numerous fairy tales, anticipating the existence of a semantic double layer hidden in the methodology of Yu Ji, and in everything that was on view.

The first work that visitors encountered was the series of Yu’s most recent videos, Stillness Practice I, II and III (all 2024)—a row of almost transparent, fluttering fabric featuring scenes of Yu’s son playing. The artist lived in Prato with her son for two months, and much of what appears in these films attests to their journey moving to the northeastern Tuscan city. The works also recalled the use of the exhibition hall as a study, playground, and research space infused with evocations of motherhood and pregnancy.

This ambivalence was advanced by Yu’s sculptures, visual crystallizations of a cyclical process of renewal and re-appropriation. A number of works from her series Flesh in Stone (2012–24) are reconfigurations of the same sculptures shown during “Miss Shell, Delta, and Two Noughts” (2023), Yu’s first exhibition in Germany. This approach conveys a sense of precariousness: everything is volatile, provisional, and liminal. Fragility and instability, as both transformative and destructive forces, lie at the heart of the individual, and form the essence of place and time. At the center of the nave was her most complete installation, Flesh in Stone - Ghost No. 9 (2021), a combination of a vintage armchair and cement figures—one larger than the other, both on top of a table—as well as a steel bar, an old mirror, and a lamp. It is a work that reduces the anthropomorphic cement figure to an essential, almost abstract shape devoid of monumentality or even personality. Portrayed in such an unnatural way, it recalls the metamorphic possibilities of the body when positioned between becoming and being, potential and realization.

Scattered on the floor were plaster casts of her son’s body, as if to mark his presence. Or perhaps they simply represented the domestic, as well as existence and growth. Interestingly, none of the objects in the exhibition appeared as an integrated whole. Instead, the space was gently activated by fragments. The idea of a corridor or a passageway contributed to making this a transitory experience, one in which the works became metonymies of the landscape of contemporary life; of our condition as individuals striving to go back to a potential wholeness, but always struggling to keep ourselves balanced; forever condemned to be hybrid, incomplete, and provisional things.

Protrude

01.02 - 09.03.2024
Sadie Coles HQ, London, UK
賽迪HQ畫廊，倫敦，英國

In her second solo exhibition with Sadie Coles HQ, Yu Ji returns to familiar themes of the body, the landscape and the fragile relationship between the two, presenting two new sculptures and a series of works on paper. Titled Protrude, the exhibition conjures a set of associations concerning presence and physicality whilst also inciting feelings of action, growth and movement. These are uneasy companions and somewhat contradictory - on the one hand, a protrusion demarks a certain stability, but on the other, a protrusion is an action, an obstacle, an inconvenience to smooth operations. This simultaneous capture of stability and movement, of certainty and fragility, lies at the heart of this new body of work. In this paradox, the exhibition speaks to the very idea of a body; the tender and precarious corporeality of the self in the world.

Two new sculptures made of concrete and soap, each standing over two meters tall, hold the gallery space like sentinels in every sense of the word. They are simultaneously stoic and vulnerable; they keep watch but also monitor their own health and stability. Column-Untitled No.3 - 2 (2023) resembles the ancient columns of Greece or Rome, crooked with age, its crumbling surface testament to its own ancient history. On inspection, there is a discolouration and a set of organic anomalies protruding from its otherwise man-made facade that suggests this is no ordinary architectural artefact. Column-Untitled No.4 - 2 (2023) is organic in nature, yet totemic in a way only nature could produce. An innate upwards growth, it appears as complex life extending to the sky, reaching for the light, exuding its transformative journey. An a-symmetrical protrusion extends outwards from its body, and together these two companion pieces speak to one another, proxies for the vulnerable body in a landscape. The artist first created her series of sculptures in conversation with plants for the High Line project in New York, specifically drawing inspiration from those in the park's renowned gardens, currently installed until March 2024.

The reference to architecture and nature in the work is explicit. Despite a clear acknowledgement that the built environment is informed by the physics of the natural world, there is a pointed analogy between the building and the body: both have skin, a structural core and a network of interior operations that keep it functioning. These are in delicate harmony with one another, and they age over time, they transform, they expose their transformation as something both lost and gained - they lose strength and beauty but gain character and distinction. Yu Ji's sculptures are no different. They are made over a long duration of research, collaboration and processual fabrication. Specific plants are 3D scanned, printed, re-modelled and added to by the artist with clay. These details are enlarged and scanned again, re-printed at greater scale and re-worked into ever complex forms. Once at the scale of a human figure, the objects are cast in concrete, reinforced with steel bars like an internal skeletal core, and the imperfect augmentations and mutations through the making and re-making process are filled with cast soap in the final form. The enduring materiality of the concrete and the sheer impermanence and fragility of soap heightens the dichotomy between nature and architecture. It undermines the anthropocentric determination to establish dominance over all else and instead accepts a type of vulnerable harmony. The oil-based soap literally fights to hold on to the water-based concrete. A singular form, in conflict, striving for unity, making its struggle visible. If sculpture often seeks to assert a permanence of form and an ossified truth about the world and ourselves, Yu Ji, in contrast, offers her works as living, changing bodies.

In a complex layering of original drawing, hand printing, silk screening and screen printing, overlaid with collaged elements and handwritten text, a series of intricate works on paper collect the preparatory materials for the sculpture. Taking source images and inspirations from work undertaken as part of exhibitions on view through 2023, these 2D works become sites for conflicting and colliding research interests to converge and materialise. Traversing timelines and periods of work, the material coalesces with an a-temporality at odds with the sculpture. These sites hold ideas that traverse time, place and movement in a non-chronological way.

Together, this body of work becomes precisely this; a body. In their raw, vulnerable physicality the sculpture and printings together reveal something poignant about how we inhabit the natural world. Rather than dominating nature and attempting to keep it at bay, the works in this exhibition contend that we could learn from nature and attune to its disposition.

M+ Sigg Prize
M+希克獎

23.09.2023 - 14.01.2024
M+, Hong Kong
M+, 香港

M+, Asia's first global museum of contemporary visual culture in the West Kowloon Cultural District in Hong Kong, presented the “Sigg Prize 2023” exhibition. Established by M+ in 2018, the Sigg Prize was formerly the Chinese Contemporary Art Award, founded by Dr Uli Sigg in China in 1998. The Sigg Prize is a biennial award recognising important artistic practices in Greater China. Open to artists born or working in the region, it aims to highlight and promote diverse works on an international scale.

The “Sigg Prize 2023” exhibition brings together works by six shortlisted artists: Jes Fan, Miao Ying, Wang Tuo, Xie Nanxing, Trevor Yeung, and Yu Ji. Their presentations touch on pertinent issues and contemporary topics of everyday life, which include responses to the disruption brought on by the COVID-19 global pandemic. With their takes on cultural kinship, Jes Fan and Trevor Yeung highlight experiences of isolation and interior trauma, which are closely tied to changes in social and institutional systems. Xie Nanxing and Yu Ji look for balance between vulnerability and resilience through their painting and sculptural practices. Drawn to the interconnection of past, present, and future, Wang Tuo and Miao Ying explore ways to evaluate history and the contemporary moment.

Yu Ji often uses industrial materials such as concrete and steel to examine the impact of the social environment on individual existence. Made of concrete, her works in this presentation are fragmented body parts restrained in a steel web, tied up, or still encased in their moulds. A large, rib-shaped hammock hangs nearby, concealing locally collected industrial debris. The forms of these sculptures originate from Yu's continuous study of the muscles of athletes engaged in extreme sports as well as her long-standing fieldwork and archival research on ancient Asian sculptures. Yu observed eroded and damaged works that have weathered centuries of change. Four independent sculptures of varying sizes present a collective imagination of the many faces of modern urban dwellers, registering their fatigue and struggle.

位於西九文化區、亞洲首間全球性當代視覺文化博物館M+宣布呈獻「希克獎2023」展覽。

希克獎由M+於2018年成立，其前身為烏利·希克博士於1998年在中國創辦的中國當代藝術獎 (CCAA)。希克獎是一項兩年一度的獎項，表揚出生或工作於大中華地區的當代藝術家，並向國際展示及推廣此地區內豐富多元的藝術創作。

此次展覽將展出六位入圍優秀藝術家的作品，包括范加、苗穎、王拓、謝南星、楊沛鏗和于吉，他們以獨特視野探討與日常生活相關的當代議題，包括回應全球疫情大流行所造成的破壞。范加和楊沛鏗藉自身對文化親緣的理解，在作品中凸顯因社會及制度變化所致的隔離與內心創傷經驗。謝南星和于吉通過繪畫和雕塑創作尋找脆弱和韌性之間的平衡。王拓和苗穎則探究如何評價歷史與當下，思考過去、現在與未來的連繫。

Protrude

Sadie Coles HQ, London, UK
Sadie Coles HQ畫廊, 倫敦, 英國

23.06.23 - 22.10.23

In her second solo exhibition with Sadie Coles HQ, Yu Ji returns to familiar themes of the body, the landscape and the fragile relationship between the two, presenting two new sculptures and a series of works on paper. Titled Protrude, the exhibition conjures a set of associations concerning presence and physicality whilst also inciting feelings of action, growth and movement. These are uneasy companions and somewhat contradictory – on the one hand, a protrusion demarks a certain stability, but on the other, a protrusion is an action, an obstacle, an inconvenience to smooth operations. This simultaneous capture of stability and movement, of certainty and fragility, lies at the heart of this new body of work. In this paradox, the exhibition speaks to the very idea of a body; the tender and precarious corporeality of the self in the world.

Two new sculptures made of concrete and soap, each standing over two meters tall, hold the gallery space like sentinels in every sense of the word. They are simultaneously stoic and vulnerable; they keep watch but also monitor their own health and stability. Column-Untitled No.3 – 2 (2023) resembles the ancient columns of Greece or Rome, crooked with age, its crumbling surface testament to its own ancient history. On inspection, there is a discolouration and a set of organic anomalies protruding from its otherwise man-made facade that suggests this is no ordinary architectural artefact. Column-Untitled No.4 – 2 (2023) is organic in nature, yet totemic in a way only nature could produce. An innate upwards growth, it appears as complex life extending to the sky, reaching for the light, exuding its transformative journey. An a-symmetrical protrusion extends outwards from its body, and together these two companion pieces speak to one another, proxies for the vulnerable body in a landscape. The artist first created her series of sculptures in conversation with plants for the High Line project in New York, specifically drawing inspiration from those in the park's renowned gardens, currently installed until March 2024.

The reference to architecture and nature in the work is explicit. Despite a clear acknowledgement that the built environment is informed by the physics of the natural world, there is a pointed analogy between the building and the body: both have skin, a structural core and a network of interior operations that keep it functioning. These are in delicate harmony with one another, and they age over time, they transform, they expose their transformation as something both lost and gained – they lose strength and beauty but gain character and distinction. Yu Ji's sculptures are no different. They are made over a long duration of research, collaboration and processual fabrication. Specific plants are 3D scanned, printed, re-modelled and added to by the artist with clay. These details are enlarged and scanned again, re-printed at greater scale and re-worked into ever complex forms. Once at the scale of a human figure, the objects are cast in concrete, reinforced with steel bars like an internal skeletal core, and the imperfect augmentations and mutations through the making and re-making process are filled with cast soap in the final form. The enduring materiality of the concrete and the sheer impermanence and fragility of soap heightens the dichotomy between nature and architecture. It undermines the anthropocentric determination to establish dominance over all else and instead accepts a type of vulnerable harmony. The oil-based soap literally fights to hold on to the water-based concrete. A singular form, in conflict, striving for unity, making its struggle visible. If sculpture often seeks to assert a permanence of form and an ossified truth about the world and ourselves, Yu Ji, in contrast, offers her works as living, changing bodies.

In a complex layering of original drawing, hand printing, silk screening and screen printing, overlaid with collaged elements and handwritten text, a series of intricate works on paper collect the preparatory materials for the sculpture. Taking source images and inspirations from work undertaken as part of exhibitions on view through 2023, these 2D works become sites for conflicting and colliding research interests to converge and materialise. Traversing timelines and periods of work, the material coalesces with an a-temporality at odds with the sculpture. These sites hold ideas that traverse time, place and movement in a non-chronological way.

Together, this body of work becomes precisely this; a body. In their raw, vulnerable physicality the sculpture and printings together reveal something poignant about how we inhabit the natural world. Rather than dominating nature and attempting to keep it at bay, the works in this exhibition contend that we could learn from nature and attune to its disposition.

ICA at NYU Shanghai's fall 2023 season opens with We the singular in multiple ghosts. I the multiple as parts of whole., an exhibition by artist YU Ji, in collaboration with DONG Longyue and WANG Xiaofu. They present an assembly of made and found objects, works on paper, moving images, sound, text, and performance as a Gesamtkunstwerk, or “total artwork,” that itself performs the fluid, overlapping process of their collaboration. Their experiments with the site, their bodies, materials, and storytelling work to expand the limits of how we know things.

Is another way of knowing possible? For the past two years, the ICA has explored alternative epistemes, lived through by other artists, that counter modes of positivism, rationality, and traumatic dualisms in modernity. But what about meaning altogether? Is it possible to break from the hegemony of meaning, that spectral world which interprets sensory experience; cognition that is expressed but limited?

Yu Ji and her friends, Dong Longyue and Wang Xiaofu, have been learning and laboring together—doing the “work of art”—to make things for us to see, hear, and feel. But the “art work” they’ve made is unstable. They are somewhere between idea and reality, complicated further by light and shadow, superimposed upon multiple times and places. It’s tempting to try to break down the whole into parts; each image, sound, material, and movement organized into a syntax that extracts meaning from their shapes, textures, timbre, weight, and duration. It’s easy to forget that there are bodies here. If we do, we might not grasp the sensuous surfaces abundant in these invisible layers and infinite sets, refracted between the form and content of things; working to expand the limits of how we know things.

Can we “understand” the work they’ve done here without interpreting? Maybe, as Joseph Beuys once said, we need to “stand elsewhere”? So, Yu Ji and her friends have tried to tell us a story...

The exhibition We the singular in multiple ghosts. I the multiple as parts of whole. and related events are presented as the third season of the ICA’s second artist research program, “Another Knowledge Is Possible” (2021-24), exploring neglected and repressed ways of knowing and the complex politics of knowledge decolonization.

上紐ICA2023年秋季展覽由藝術家於吉和特邀藝術家董龍躍、汪曉芙帶來展覽——「我們是復形疊影中的一個，我是整體中部分的集合。」

展覽中所呈現的作品——拾得物與自制物的組合、紙上創作、影像、聲音、表演——合併成整體藝術 (Gesamtkunstwerk)，詮釋了藝術家流動又交織的合作歷程。藝術家們通過對場域、身體、材料和敘事方式的探索，拓展認知方式的更多可能。

另一種認知方式是否真的存在？迄今為止，我們探索了許多替代性的認知體系。它們經過了藝術家的親身實踐，意圖抵抗現代性中的實證主義、理性和摧毀性的二元對立。可是，「意義」究竟是什麼？當意義成了一種霸權，統治了所有的感受，限制了表達的可能性，我們是否還能衝破它的桎梏？

于吉和她的兩位夥伴——董龍躍和汪曉芙——在共同藝術勞作的過程中，通過學習和動手實踐，創作出可見、可聞、可聽、可感之物。如是勞作所得之「物」是流動的，它們介於理念與現實之間，在光影中愈發難辨，又在無數的時空中不斷疊加。我們總是習慣於把整體拆解成部分——一幀畫面，一道聲音，一件材料，一個動作——再從它們的形狀、質地、音色、重量和時長中提取意義，組成語句，以至遺忘了作為整體的肉身之存在。正如此，我們無法把握復形疊影里豐饒的感官世界，而它同時蘊含了事物的表象與本質，指向了打破認知藩籬的可能性。

那麼，如果放棄闡釋，我們是否能「體認」到這裡的所得之物？又或許，正如約瑟夫·博伊斯所說，我們必須重置「身體」，才能「辨認」其意。這就是于吉和她的夥伴們要講的故事……

Standing Elsewhere

Is another way of knowing possible? For the past two years, the ICA has been exploring alternative epistemologies, lived through by other artists, that counter modes of positivism, rationality, and traumatic dualisms in modernity. But what about meaning altogether? Unacknowledged within this project of recuperating “other” knowledges may be the fundamental premise of seeking meaning, or the interpretation of sensory experiences and signs (images, sounds, etc.), as a kind of epistemic hegemony itself. We can and do know things, through sensory perception, intuition, etc., without it necessarily being about something else. Is it possible to break from the hegemony of meaning, that spectral world which interprets sensory experience; cognition that is expressed but limited?

*We the singular in multiple ghosts. I the multiple as parts of whole.*¹ is an exhibition by Yu Ji, in collaboration with Dong Longyue and Wang Xiaofu. Together they present an assembly of made and found objects, works on paper, moving images, sound, text, and performance as a Gesamtkunstwerk, or “total artwork,” that performs the fluid, overlapping process of their collaboration and of life imbricating art. Their experiments with the site, their bodies, materials, and storytelling work to expand the limits of how we know things.

Yu Ji is an artist who makes sculptures, installations, and performances that intervene in a particular place with an approach to materials and form that are experimental and open ended. We may find it challenging to ascribe semiotic meaning to her work, but a sensuous immediacy can be felt in the experience of it – the simultaneous weight and ephemerality of cement, mysterious images that allude but don’t signify, the texture of surfaces that feel familiar but are still alienating, or movements and gestures of the body that seem received but are reconsidered. If we tried to interpret the perception of these things as something else, such as commentary on the rapid urbanization of China, as ecological critique, or maybe even as psychoanalysis of loss, we diminish the value of (her) art as a sensory knowledge of its own, which was developed through years of training (her) intuition. By trying to ascribe meaning, we risk neglecting the making and experience of art as the production of sensual, situated knowledge.

But there’s more to this exhibition than just “sensing as knowing” (or maybe “embodied cognition” would be a more recognizable concept for some) as an aesthetic experience and practice. Yu Ji invited two other artists, Dong Longyue and Wang Xiaofu, whom she met and befriended through AM art space, an alternative arts organization she founded and ran for more than a decade in Shanghai, to learn and experiment with making art together. Dong Longyue creates video and performative works featuring written text as the main subject, playing with language, grammar, sound, and form. Wang Xiaofu is a painter, who also writes and makes videos, interested in playing with the boundaries of perception and existence. For over a year, they met around a table in their studios; they read books, they talked, they wrote stories; they ate and drank together. They explored a construction site; inhabiting the space together with the construction workers, testing the potentiality of the space and materials onsite that became the finished form (as well as the detritus) of the ICA gallery and the site of this exhibition. They also went to the seashore, the tidal flats of Shanghai, near Yu Ji’s studio and conducted similar tests there as well.

We could say that they are researchers in perception and cognition, taking unstable events, processes, and effects, and transfiguring them into new forms and other sensory impressions, organized somewhere between idea and reality – or all of these things, layered upon each other, keeping traces of each iteration, experiment, and gesture, to form a whole – like a palimpsest. There are duplicates and originals. There are images of imagined objects and physical manifestations of what’s represented in those images. Though there may be discrete “artworks” throughout this exhibition, each “artwork” also seems to contain more parts within. It’s difficult to parse them apart from each other and the whole, as well as their individual authorship. Though their individual subjectivities do glint and glimmer here and there: emerging in fragments of materials lying on a table; images layered and reflected onto multiple surfaces; shapes and structures that support other images, objects, and bodies; and texts that tell stories of truth and fiction.

Like the artists, our own bodies are implicated in the experience of these multiples and the whole, through light and shadows, reflective and transparent surfaces, shifting timbres of sound from one level to another; moving about in the space and encountering these sensory impressions – as though we are also researchers in perception and cognition. Can we understand the work they’ve done here without interpreting? Withholding explanation, and yet as the most generous move of all, the artists have instead written a novel and shared it with us. These stories position you elsewhere in other times and spaces, from which to understand their project, its parts and as a whole. Maybe in order to “understand,” as Joseph Beuys once said, we need to “stand elsewhere”²?

She is overshadowed by a stalking, obscure sensation, as if a grey block lumps underneath her chest. This time when her feet are trapped again, she feels that instead of the mud, what arrests their movement is a membrane between the

重置身體，辨認其意

另一種認知方式是否真的存在？在過去的兩年裡，上紐ICA探索了許多替代性的認知體系。它們經過了藝術家的親身實踐，意圖抵抗現代性中的實證主義、理性和摧毀性的二元對立。可是，「意義」究竟是什麼？在這個旨在恢復「另類」知識的計劃里，我們未曾宣之於口的那些—或許是將追求意義作為先決條件，又或許是試圖解釋感官經驗、符號（比如圖像、聲音等等）—其本身就是一種認識論霸權。實際上，感官體驗和直覺足以使我們認識事物，我們毋需將其解讀為別的什麼。當意義的幽靈始終縈繞著感官世界，我們是否能打破它的桎梏，擺脫它對感受的限制？

「我們是復形疊影中的一個，我是整體中部分的集合。」¹是一場由于吉和董龍躍、汪曉芙共同帶來的展覽。展覽中所呈現的作品——拾得物與自制物的組合、紙上創作、影像、聲音、表演——合併成總體藝術（Gesamtkunstwerk），詮釋了藝術家流動又交織的合作歷程。藝術家們通過對場域、身體、材料和敘事方式的探索，拓展認知方式的更多可能。

于吉的創作媒介主要是雕塑、裝置和表演，她以實驗性和開放性的材料及形式介入特定場所。雖然我們很難賦予其作品符號學的意義，卻能從中體會到直接的感官經驗，比如通過沈甸甸但總是短暫存留的水泥、似有所暗示又無所指的神秘圖像、熟悉又陌生的材質、似是而非的身體動作。如果我們試圖把這些事物解讀為別的什麼，比如將其視作對中國快速城市化的評價，或是對生態破壞的批判，抑或是對整個失落過程的精神分析，都是對（她）藝術的矮化，這其中蘊含的感官知識是在（她）長期的直覺訓練中積累而得的。當我們試圖賦予藝術意義，就有可能忘記：藝術的創作和體驗是一種感性的和情境的知識。

但此次展覽的意義遠不止將「觀看即認知」（或者用另一個更為人所熟知的概念——「具身認知」）作為一種審美體驗和實踐。于吉邀請了另外兩位藝術家董龍躍和汪曉芙，三人在上午藝術空間結緣，它是于吉在上海創辦經營了十多年的一個替代性藝術空間。在這個空間里，于吉和朋友們一起學習、嘗試如何共同創作。董龍躍的作品形式有影像和表演，但文字始終是他創作的主體，他總是在語言、語法、聲音和形式間探索遊戲。汪曉芙是一位畫家，她也寫作和創作影像，她喜歡在感知和存在的邊界中試探遊戲。在這一年多的時間里，三人在工作室圍桌而聚，一起讀書、交談、寫故事，共飲共食。三人也一起探索彼時仍在施工中的展覽現場，與建築工人待在一起，琢磨空間和現場的各種材料。最終，這個空間、這些建築材料（包括施工現場留下的工作與生活的痕跡）變成了現在的上紐ICA藝術館，也就是這個展覽發生的地方。除了在施工現場，三人還在于吉上海工作室附近的海邊灘塗上，做了類似的探索實驗。

我們可以將三位藝術家看作是感知層面的研究者，三人將波動的事件、過程和結果轉換成新的形式，編織進不同的感官體驗。這樣游離於理念與現實間的創作，如同被反復刮去再重新書寫的重寫羊皮紙（palimpsest）一般，將所有的一切，包括每一次的迭代、嘗試和形態的痕跡都保留下來，經過層層疊加覆蓋，最終形成了一個整體。在這裡，既有複製品，也有原件，既有想象之物的圖像，也有圖像所對應的實物。儘管在展覽中可以見到所謂獨立的「藝術品」，但每件「藝術品」都融合了其它作品的一部分。我們難以將它

們拆解為單獨的作品，它們彼此之間與它們共同組成的整體無法割裂。不過，它們各自的主體性——不論是桌上零零散散的物件，還是在不同表面上堆疊著的、映照出的各種圖像，抑或是承載著其它圖像、物品、身體的各種媒介，還是虛實交錯的文字——也在閃耀著微光。

晦暗不明的感覺如影隨形，如同一股灰色的團塊集結在她的胸口。而當她的腳又陷入泥中時，她感到擒住她的腳的不是泥水，而是事物表面和她的意識中隔著的一層膜，它又薄又韌，一經觸摸或深究下去就會增長其不可穿透性。而當她晃過神後再望向船時，緊迫感又推著她前進。她感到答案就在那裡，她即將邁向終結。³

于吉和她的兩位夥伴—董龍躍和汪曉芙—在共同藝術勞作的過程中，通過學習和動手實踐，創作出可見、可聞、可聽、可感之物。如是勞作所得之「物」是流動的，它們介於理念與現實之間，在光影中愈發難辯，又在無數的時空中不斷疊加。我們總是習慣於把整體拆解成部分——一幀畫面、一道聲音、一件材料、一個動作——再從它們的形狀、質地、音色、重量和時長中提取意義，組成語句，以至遺忘了作為整體的肉身之存在。正如此，我們無法把握復形疊影里豐饒的感官世界，而它同時蘊含了事物的表象與本質，指向了打破認知藩籬的可能性。

How are our bodies impacted by changes in the environment around us? This question is at the core of Chinese artist Yu Ji's sculptural and installation-based practice. Yet, rather than focusing explicitly on the tensions that often underlie this relationship, Yu Ji (b. 1985, Shanghai, China) asks us to re-examine the ties between our bodies and the built environment, offering the possibility that these connections are transformative. In her first US museum solo exhibition, A Guest, A Host, A Ghost, OCMA presents the first ten works in her ongoing series Flesh in Stone (2012–ongoing), where different-sized cement casts of the human body are presented in fragments, as parts of a larger whole. Alongside these intimate cement works, the exhibition includes three of her Refined Still Life lithographs (all 2020)—ghostly, fugitive images of landscapes printed onto curved plates of stainless steel. Fragmented and abstracted, Yu Ji's works seem to have come from the past while being reminiscent of a world still coming into being. Combined with a new work created in response to the curved architecture of OCMA's Mezzanine and Landing Galleries, A Guest, A Host, A Ghost explores the interwoven relationship between the body, nature, and the built environment, asking us to think deeply about what it takes to occupy a physical form today.

CCA Berlin – Center for Contemporary Arts presents Miss Shell, Delta, and Two Noughts, featuring newly commissioned sculptures and video works by artist Yu Ji, marking her first solo exhibition in Germany.

Featured in the exhibition are elements from Yu Ji's Flesh in Stone, her long-term series of figurative concrete sculptures. The series is an expression of the human body's distortions. It is composed of fragmented torsos and sexual organs the medical gaze would gender as male, though stripped of their supposed masculine properties. For these elements to take shape, Yu Ji produced casts from three women she met during her travels and asked to model for her. The sculptures are a mixture of white plaster and gray clay, half solid, half soft, and unfinished, emphasizing their fragility and incompleteness. The exhibition also includes a tabletop work titled Flesh in Stone - Ghost No.8, as well as video experiments created with a homemade camera obscura.

Stone, Barnacles, and Seeds (2022) is made of up of several integrating elements including sculpture, video and performance that revolve around imagery of water and build on Yu Ji's thematic practice, namely the exploration of time, decay, and the intersection between humans and the natural world. Over the course of the four-day exhibition, from 10 to 13 November 2022, the artwork evolved, presenting a fleeting moment in constant process.

The sculptural elements of Stone, Barnacles, and Seeds are the artist's largest to date and she incorporated new methods of fabrication, working with the erosion of metal for the first time. Yu Ji is known for her diverse material practice spanning sculpture, installation, performance, and video. Her work is motivated by an exploration of the concept of place and how specific locations can be changed by both geographical and historical narratives. She embraces material imperfections to reflect upon instability and unanticipated change within our environments.

The inspiration for Stone, Barnacles, and Seeds comes from the artist's travels to various bodies of water—from the tideland by her seaside studio in Shanghai to the rock bed of a lake at the northeastern coast of America. For her, water morphs from a concrete memory into a mythical narration of time and decay—capturing a fleeting moment and its various movements, rather than a specific location. The theme of transformation is explored through the lens of various media—the eroding of metal, movement of water, changing of light, the decay of natural materials—denoting a journey that interweaves reality and memory.

Entering the exhibition, visitors were immersed in a concerto of light and shadow illuminating undulating surfaces and textures to create a visual sense of flowing rhythms. Filmed imagery of water in mundane urban settings titled Late Wave (2021) plays intermittently on a retro television monitor. Two monumental sculptures anchor the piece—Protrude II (2022), a large bronze plate onto which the artist projects a video of water in motion, and Half Peel Half Pulp III (2022), a lead carpet formed into the organic shape of a wave. The artist experiments with texture and dimension, layering the metal carpet with sculptural references to organic sea material and sunken wreckage, while adding a divot within its surface alluding to the phantom presence of a human figure.

At the core of her practice, Yu Ji explores human intervention in the natural world. This new artwork incorporates a concrete sculpture of a human torso, Flesh in Stone – Rema Rema 2202 (2022), providing a relative human measure to appreciate the scale of the installation. The integrated live performance titled, Spontaneous Decisions III (2022), in collaboration with choreographer Zhihao, performed by Shuang-qi and leeyang, and is the latest iteration from Yu Ji's ongoing "Spontaneous Decisions" series. Throughout the duration of the exhibition, a performer will peel a jackfruit, depositing the skin within the artwork. The repetitive activity comments on time and transforms the artwork into an evolutionary process.

《石頭、藤壺、核》的創作靈感來自藝術家對不同水體的觀察——從她上海工作室旁的海濱灘塗到美國東北海岸的湖邊岩床。對她而言,水從具體記憶演化而來,繼而蛻變為有關時間和衰敗的神話般的敘事,它可以捕捉轉瞬即逝的時刻以及各種運動,而非具體的場地。借助各種媒介,於吉探索著「變化」這一主題:金屬的腐蝕、水的流動、光線的變化、自然材料的衰敗——開啓一場現實和記憶交織的旅程。

進入展廳內,參觀者沈浸在光與影的協奏中,它們照亮了作品起伏的表面和侵蝕而成的肌理,將流動的節奏造就為視覺的感受。《拔地II》(2022年)與《半皮半肉III》(2022年)是她創作的兩件大型作品,前者結合了大型金屬板雕塑和投映其上的水的動態影像,後者則是一塊如地毯般貼撫於地面的鉛板,表面呈現波浪起伏的形態。藝術家的創作實驗涉及作品表面肌理和尺度,她在金屬毯上附加了一組與沈船和有機海洋生物有關的小型雕塑,同時也為鉛板賦予了一個隆起的結構,似在暗示著一個看不見的人形的存在。

于吉在作品中探索人類對自然世界的介入。此次的全新藝術作品包含一件人體軀乾混凝土雕塑《石肉—雷瑪 雷瑪2202》(2022年),它為整個裝置提供了人的對照尺度。題為《即興判斷III》(2022年)的現場行為表演是來自于吉「即興判斷」系列的最新作品,由師志豪編舞,雙琦、李漾表演呈現。在整個展覽期間,一位表演者將剝開波羅蜜,並將果皮融入現場作品中。這一重復性的表演與時間亦步亦趨,將藝術作品轉變為一個不斷演化的過程。

Wasted Mud

Chisenhale Gallery, London, U.K.

22.05.21 - 18.07.21

Wasted Mud, was the first solo exhibition in a UK institution by Shanghai-based artist Yu Ji. Comprising sculpture, video, print and performance, Yu Ji's work often responds to a specific context or location to examine the interplay between the human body and its surrounding space.

Motivated by an acute sensitivity to materials, Yu Ji's work explores a tension between physical matter and energy. Recurring materials used in her work, such as cement, wood, metal, plastic and organic matter all have their distinctive characteristics, tactility and 'temperatures'. In her installations, these materials oppose, rub and strike against one another; proposing by their proximity how they might merge, combine or absorb one into the other.

Influenced by research conducted during a residency at Chisenhale Gallery's exhibition partners Delfina Foundation, in 2019, Yu Ji's new commission saw London as a site to explore the body in relation to their built and natural environments. Taking her experience of the city's canals and rivers as a starting point, Yu Ji's installation acted as a 'living sculpture', where, through the use of water, Yu Ji altered the gallery's seemingly fixed structure.

Building on Yu Ji's ongoing series of fragmented concrete torsos, the exhibition included two new concrete sculptures depicting bodies bound and moulded together, one contained within plaster and wood. Influenced by the birth of her first child, this new series of sculptures comments on human interdependence, exchange and transformation.

Hung from the gallery walls and hovering just above the floor was Jaded Ribs (2021), a large handmade net filled with recycled wreckage from local construction sites in Tower Hamlets, alongside objects from the artist's studio in Shanghai. Ten plastic tubes connected to a self-regulating electronic water pump slowly leaked plant-infused water throughout the gallery space, altering the exterior of her sculptures and seeping liquid into the building's floor.

Wasted Mud developed Yu Ji's ongoing enquiry into a symbiotic relationship between her body and specific terrains and contexts in which she works. By transforming the gallery into a site under construction, where what is considered debris revealed its potential for hidden vitality, Yu Ji's new body of work exposed our reliance upon one another and renewed focus on the spaces that contain and sustain us.

奇森黑爾藝術空間 (Chisenhale Gallery) 展出上海藝術家于吉在英國機構的首次個展「荒棄的泥土」。于吉的作品包括雕塑、視頻、印刷和表演，對特定的環境或場所做出回應，以研究人體與周圍空間的相互作用。

于吉對材料有著敏銳的感知，她的作品探索了物質和能量之間的張力。作品中反復使用的材料，例如水泥、木材、金屬、塑料和有機物，都有其獨特的特點、觸感和「溫度」。在她的裝置作品中，這些材料相互對立、摩擦和碰撞；基於它們的親近度，提出合併、結合或吸收彼此的多種可能性。

受其2019年在倫敦Delfina基金會駐留期間進行的田野調查的影響，于吉的新委託作品將倫敦視為探索城市發展與自然環境之間張力的場所。基於她對城市的運河和河流的調研，于吉的裝置就像一個「活雕塑」，利用水改變了藝術空間看似固定的結構。

展覽以于吉持續創作的混凝土軀干系列《石肉》為基礎，包括兩個新的混凝土雕塑，描繪了被捆綁在一起鑄造的身體，其中一件內嵌在石膏和木頭中。受她第一個孩子出生的影響，新的雕塑系列反映了人類的相互依存、交流和轉變。

懸掛在展廳牆壁上並掛在半空中的是《Jaded Ribs》(2021)。一個巨大的手工網內裝滿了從哈姆雷特塔當地建築工地回收的殘骸，以及來自藝術家在上海的工作室的物品。十根塑料管連接到一個自動調節的電子水泵，緩慢地將植物浸煮的液體滲漏到整個空間中，從而改變雕塑的外觀，並將液體滲入建築物的地板。

「荒棄的泥土」拓展了于吉對她的身體和工作的特定地形和環境之間的共生關係的持續探索。通過將展廳轉變為一個正在建設中的場所，在此所謂的碎片顯示出其潛在的生命力。于吉的新作品揭示了我們對彼此的依賴，並重新關注包含和支撐我們的空間。

“Hidden at the very deep end of the ocean was an isle. There were no other plants besides tree ferns and coconut trees. Nor humans. Until one day, when a shipwreck survivor was escorted on to the isle by waves. As he regained consciousness, he rummaged through the sack he always had on him. A couple of journals, a marker pen, a small mirror, a pair of sunglasses, a seawater-soaked loaf of bread and a handful of cherry tomatoes.

The man kept himself alive with the coconuts available on the isle, and consumed in the most careful fashion one cherry tomato each day. In four or five days' time, a cherry tomato bursted as it became totally ripe. The survivor carefully buried it, looking forward to a miraculous development. In nine or ten days' time, another two cherry tomatoes bursted and once again, he carefully placed them in the ground, in the hope of the same miracle. Finally, when there was only one left, the survivor mouthed it, dutifully chewing the tiny yet firm flesh. As insubstantial as it was, it was utterly fresh and delicious; appeared in the survivor's mind in this moment was his beloved, his homeland, as he shed tears. The buried fruit did not eventually grow, and all there is on the isle today are still tree ferns and coconut trees.”

-Yu Ji

Edouard Malingue Gallery is pleased to share 'Forager', an exhibition of Yu Ji's latest works that opened on 12th November, 2020, at Avenue Apartments on Tongren Road, Shanghai. The text above is excerpted from 'Half Peel Half Pulp', a text by the artist commissioned by the UCCA in 2020, as the sixth text included in the publication project 'Cookbook of the Pandemic Year'. The text is also the point of departure for the artist's latest series included in the 'Forager'. The exhibition space in the Avenue Apartments was a recently evacuated residence, which, before the arrival of the new owner, remained largely desolate: one sees here both the previous occupant's rush and the new host's belatedness. “From a very young age, I suspected there was more to my world than I could see.” Thus began Orhan Pamuk's 'Istanbul', and Yu Ji's thought when entering into the place. Sun beams shot through the dusty glass windows into the rooms, floors rendered queer, and walls left fragmented – the remaining past participates in the present. Narrated in the 'Forager', equipped with a series of sculptural works that are purposely made functional in nature, were the affective connections between the residence and the tenants...

The venue of this exhibition was generously supported by Mr. Lu Xun and Sifang Art Museum.

「在大海很深的盡頭，隱藏著一座島。島上除了杪欏和椰子樹，沒有其他植被。也沒有人。直到有一天，一位海上遇難者被海水送上岸。在意識漸漸清醒後，幸存者翻找起隨身攜帶的背包：兩本旅行手冊，一支記號筆，一面小鏡子，一副太陽眼鏡，一塊早已被海水泡爛的麵包和一小把聖女果。

幸存者靠島上的椰子維繫生命，每天小心翼翼地吃下一顆聖女果。四、五天過去了，一顆聖女果熟透裂開來。幸存者小心地埋入土中，期待奇跡發生。九、十天過去了，兩顆聖女果熟透裂開，他再次小心地埋入土中，仍期待著奇跡。直到剩下最後一顆了，幸存者放入嘴中，認真咀嚼小而緊實的果肉。果肉雖小，卻極其鮮美，幸存者此刻腦中浮現出他深愛的人，他生活的土地和家園，落下眼淚。埋入土中的果實後來沒有發芽，直到現在，島上仍然只長杪欏和椰子樹。」

馬凌畫廊很榮幸宣佈于吉個展「Forager」將於11月12日在上海銅仁路聯華公寓開幕，屆時將會展出于吉近期創作的全新作品。上文摘自于吉《半皮半肉》，是她為UCCA《疫年食志》連載之第六則食譜所寫，本次展覽的創作脈絡亦始於此。聯華公寓的展覽空間是一處居民住宅，因為換了房主，屋內是重整旗鼓前的一片荒蕪，舊人匆匆離去，新人姍姍來遲。「從很小的時候開始，我便相信我的世界存在一些我看不見的東西。」這是奧爾罕·帕慕克在《伊斯坦布爾》的開頭，也是于吉打開屋宅大門時的念頭。陽光穿過鋪滿灰塵的玻璃窗進入屋子，高低不平的地板、殘缺不全的牆壁，被遺留的過去參與進此刻。「Forager」因藝術家的要求保留英文作為展覽名，「房間」與「住客」的情感聯結將在一系列帶有功能(functional)意味的雕塑中被一一道來.....

Yu Ji's new work 'Flesh in stone - The Moving Feast' (2020) refers to the human condition. The sculptures are transformed into both bodies and materials in Yuji's creations. It is both a sampling of real-life and a temporal accumulation as a theatrical flow of rhetoric. The sliced up flesh is drawn into the ruins of buildings, and the carriers that carry it hint at an impending displacement. As powerful collectives of human beings, the way in which these isolated units are cut up, transported, and encroached when they are considered individuals by the production system, becomes the language of social cooking itself.

Debris and Other Atmospheric Affects: Yu Ji

by Billy Tang

This article was published in Mousse Magazine, Issue #72, Summer 2020.*

Yu Ji's practice begins with an exercise in unlearning: a process that emerges after a long gestation period of carefully scrutinizing the physical tendencies of objects and materials. The fugitive nature of detritus in human-made and natural environments has long been a source of fascination for her—a universe enabling contemplation of concepts such as transformation and entropy. Her sculptures and installations rely on concrete, bricks, iron, plaster, and other scraps gleaned from building sites to create volumetric forms to occupy a space, which are combined or offset with textures and colors found in perishable materials such as hair, tree resin, wax, lime wood, and fresh fruit. The conditions surrounding the work take a central role in a generative method that begins to reveal itself through a combination of on-the-spot and laborious, counterintuitive responses to a given place.

The exhibition has yet to open, although the pre-prepared elements of the installation have already arrived from the artist's studio in Shanghai and are currently waiting in storage in London. Yu Ji's first major solo exhibition in the United Kingdom, Wasted Mud, formerly due to open in April at Chisenhale Gallery, London (now postponed to early 2021), is an opportunity for the artist to bring her site-specific approach to exhibition-making to an institution outside mainland China. Yu likes to spend considerable effort collecting raw material and discarded remnants from construction sites or abandoned areas, wherever she happens to pass through. In 2013, the artist utilized dust in an improvised performance with her collaborator Yan Jun at Art Space, Shanghai. Yu's actions in Deep in the Cloud were to throw bags of dry cement so that particles would float into the air, covering the entire room (and the audience), while Yan's manipulation of electronic sound sustained their levitation through a configuration of upward-facing speakers. About this work, Yan commented: "Dust is all pervasive, people can't help partaking in it as they inhale its particles. Our relationship with this matter is unwitting, and we only feel its reverberations. There are no figures of speech or symbols here. I have considered describing the linguistic state, how language-as-matter subverts language-as-tool."^[1]

In preparation for the London exhibition, the artist initiated a field research into the vicinity where Chisenhale is located, with a particular interest in the remaining wild and uncultivated areas around the canals and waterways ^[2]. She was interested in how to internalize this flux of natural elements—elements that are normally peripheral to the experience of the audience inside the gallery. Yu looks to nurture these relationships into a language of abstraction honed from her experience living in Shanghai, a place where, depending on the area, buildings are already either in a state of decay and/or immediately surrounded by the accelerated growth of other structures. Here, the evocation of "mud," an impure body of earth and water, connects to Yu's gravitation toward self-effacing materials and their undifferentiated potential to yield new possibilities. Waste, memory, smell, and other atmospheric effects become mediums to express fluctuations in the environment in relation to the nature of our bodies.

A version of Flesh in Stone (2012-ongoing), a series of figurative sculptures, will make an appearance in the London show. Each year, Yu has been molding clay with her hands, recalling archaeological fragments of ancient bodies, whose torsos and limbs contort and extend themselves into a static choreography of gestures. Another suspension occurs in Etudes-Lento IV (2017-2019), this time with pine resin, a secretion that normally flows after tree damage. The artist sees this work as a spatial composition that lasts until the resin coagulates, with metal chains used as its hanging structure. The time and gesture of the performance elongates until the moment turpentine in the resin evaporates midair to a fixed form.

I remember during a studio visit in 2019, Yu speaking of the pressure of trying keep the exhibition space as empty as possible while triangulating between Shanghai, Chisenhale Gallery, and the surrounding areas. Embracing this dislocation, her thoughts were on the challenge of sustaining a strong emotional energy and presence without physically filling up the gallery. There will be a black mesh that hangs across it, like a giant hammock or disemboweled creature, which will swell or sag according to the lightness or heaviness of its distributed load of sculptural fragments and waste. The artist is also construct- ing a mechanical system that requires wild grass to be fed into it every day, then slowly boils the grass down, the by-product of the resulting juice pumped out so that its aroma wafts around.

Every surface, for Yu, somehow embodies this delicate balance of natural systems surviving within the gaps of an artificial one. In Moss (2012), concrete is shaped into natural-looking rocks, which are scattered across the exhibition space to disrupt the sterile white cube. As a finishing touch, the artist dipped strands of her shed hair into green dye and embedded them into the rock surfaces. By gathering such materials into an exhibition, she looks to recoup a flow of debris mixed from different localities and to make these inanimate fragments live again inside a new circulation of extended meanings.

在籌備倫敦個展時，于吉開始了對奇森黑爾藝術空間附近地區開展實地研究。其中，她對運河和水道周圍剩下未開發的荒地特別感興趣。²她感興趣於如何能內化這種通常處於觀眾在美術館觀展之體驗的外圍自然元素。于吉期望將這些關係培育成一種從在上海生活經驗中磨煉成的抽象語言。在上海，視乎不同地區而言，有的建築物要麼已處於破損的狀態中，要麼正被快速增長中的新結構所包圍。在此，「泥」——這種土與水的不純體——被喚起；與之相聯結的，是那些謙遜材料、及其無特徵潛能所蘊含的新可能性之於于吉的吸引力。廢物、記憶、氣味、還有其他大氣效應，變成用以表達與我們肉身本質相關的環境波動的媒介。

倫敦個展還將展出肢體雕塑《石肉》系列(2012至今，持續進行中)的新作。這些年，于吉親手用泥塑創作，令人想起古代身體雕像的考古遺骸，它們分散的軀乾和四肢扭曲、延展成為一組動作姿態的靜態編排。另一作品《練習曲—慢板 樂章IV》(Etudes-Lento IV, 2017-2019)則通過松脂來呈現另一種懸置感。松脂通常是松樹受損時所產生的分泌物。藝術家將這件作品視為一次空間上的編曲，樂章將隨著樹脂的完全凝固而終止，鐵鍊則是它的懸掛結構。這場演奏的時間和姿態隨松香在空氣中揮發而拉長，直至它到達一個穩定不變的形態。

對於于吉而言，每一種地表都以某種方式體現了自然系統生存於人造系統夾縫中的微妙平衡。在《青苔之輕》(2012)中，混凝土被塑造成看似自然的岩石，散布在展覽空間各處，打破了無菌室般的白立方氛圍。畫龍點睛之處在於，藝術家將幾縷自己的頭髮浸入綠色染料中，然後嵌進岩石表面。于吉希望通過把這些材料匯集到展覽里，以恢復一連串從自不同場所糅合而成的殘骸，讓這些無生命的碎片在延伸意義的新循環中重新擁有生命。

May You Live In Interesting Times, The 58th International Art Exhibition
La Biennale di Venezia
「願你生活在有趣的時代」, 第58屆威尼斯雙年展

Central Pavilion, Venice Biennale, Venice, Italy

11.05 - 24.11.2019

The 58th International Art Exhibition, titled 'May You Live In Interesting Times,' took place from 11th May to 24th November 2019 in Venice. It's named after a phrase that has been invoked in speeches by Western politicians for over a hundred years as an "ancient Chinese curse", even though such a curse never actually existed. Curator Ralph Rugoff described this "counterfeit curse" as an "uncertain artefact... at once suspect and rich in meaning", noting that it suggests "potential lines of exploration that are worth pursuing at present, especially when the 'interesting times' it evokes seem to be with us once again." The Exhibition developed from the Central Pavilion (Giardini) to the Arsenale and included 79 participants from all over the world.

Entropy 熵

Faurschou Foundation, Beijing, China

09.09.2018 - 13.01.2019

‘Entropy’ was a group exhibition presented at Faursschou Foundation, Beijing, which aimed to grasp the Chinese art scene at large by exploring the works of seven Chinese contemporary artists. The exhibition, ‘Entropy’ consists of seven sections, presenting works by artists He An, Liu Wei, Yang Fudong, Zhao Zhao, Sun Xun, Yu Ji and Chen Tianzhuo. Each artist had been given their own exhibition section, in order for them to express themselves with their own distinct voice. The overall exhibition offered the viewers an insight into the complex and ever-evolving Chinese art scene of today within an overall framework—artists born and raised in a rapidly changing China, marked by economic growth and cultural exchange. Like the scientific term “entropy,” which is a measurement of the number of possible states in a given system, the exhibition was one voice from China, formed by many, and could be interpreted and experienced in various ways.

The seven artists presented at Faursschou Foundation were raised in China during different stages of social and economic reform. He An, Liu Wei and Yang Fudong, all from the 70s generation, sought to translate the complexity of their rapidly changing environment into installations, paintings, sculptures and video pieces. Their works originated from conflicting emotions, caused by clashes between urbanism and nature, as well as deeply-rooted traditions and a new modern reality—all of which the artists experienced first-hand during their youth. From the early 80’s generation, Faursschou Foundation presented artworks by Zhao Zhao and Sun Xun. Their installations contained references to politics, history and mythology, with Zhao Zhao’s works using subtle means of expression, whereas Sun Xun took a more overt approach. Yu Ji and Chen Tianzhuo, both born in 1985, were the youngest artists in the group exhibition. Raised in a China that had acquired much greater wealth and stability than in previous generations, these artists integrated elements related to religious and everyday rituals through site-specific installations and performances. Over a decade ago, Faursschou Foundation began its venture into the Chinese art scene with the opening of its new space in Beijing. Today, the foundation is pleased to continue this journey and exhibit artists who are relevant in shaping the art scene today, both in China, and abroad.

林冠藝術基金會展出的七位藝術家分別長成於中國社會和經濟發展的不同時期。何岸、劉韡和楊福東均出生於70年代，試圖將他們身處的迅速裂變的環境複雜性轉化為裝置、繪畫、雕塑和錄像作品。正如藝術家在青年時期親身經歷的那樣，他們的作品內核源於城市化進程與自然交戰引發的情感衝突，根深蒂固的傳統和新的「現代」現實碰撞所導致的不適、傷痛和迷惘。對於80年代初出生的藝術家，展覽呈現趙趙和孫遜的作品。他們的裝置包含對政治、歷史和神話的反思、評論和參照。趙趙的作品運用尖銳而微妙的表達方式，而孫遜則採取更鮮明和超現實的方法。于吉和陳天灼都出生於1985年，是群展中最年輕的藝術家。他們成長的環境是一個比前幾代人獲得更多財富、穩定和跨文化交流的中國，他們的作品通過強調「現場」性的裝置和表演，融合了豐富龐雜的宗教和日常儀式的多樣元素。自2007年在北京開放空間以來，林冠藝術基金會持續參與中國藝術場域的發展已達十多年之久。

The cement sculptures 'Flesh in Stone' are part of an ongoing series started in 2012, and are comprised of ten figurative works. None of the figures have feet, arms or a head. The surface of the figures retain a smooth, sensual roughness, and keep the slightly raised edges from the molds that originally bisected the forms. Each figure is precariously supported by an adjustable iron armature made to curve around the sculptural body, and is just enough to barely support the weight of the sculpture.

Yu is interested in how we deal with our splintered subjectivities and how we acknowledge these inhabited bodies in the present moment. In Yu's words, she is searching for how "one's flesh [can] be trusted if the flesh does not represent any one person, carry any emotions, showcase any physical details, or carry any anatomical accuracy." With this skepticism, Yu creates a temporal relay wherein the body, fragmented and in movement, is sustained through the weight of time and the fecundity of memory. Art as time machine.

于吉感興趣於我們如何對待主觀性的碎裂，以及如何認知這些棲息於當下存在的人體。用于吉的話來說，她正試圖思索「一個肉身如何能在不代表任何個人、不攜帶任何情緒、不呈現任何身體細節、或甚至不具有任何解剖學準確性的前提下被信任」。帶著這種疑思，于吉創造了一個時間中繼，通過時間之重量和記憶之充沛，來維持分裂且運動中的身體。此刻，藝術就如同時間機器。

Hugo Boss Asia Art: Award for Emerging Asian Artists
Hugo Boss 亞洲新銳藝術家大獎展覽

Rockbund Art Museum, Shanghai, China

27.10.2017 - 11.02.2018

Yu Ji's artistic practice is focused primarily on sculpture and installation all the while involving video and performance. In her works, materials play a crucial role throughout. Cement, wood, metals, and plastics used in her sculptures and installations all have their distinctive characteristics, tactility, and warmth. They polish and strike against one another, negotiate to the point of opposition, and then merge to attain unity. In the exhibition, Yu Ji experimentally connected and wrapped the works with plastic films full of transparency and resilience, creating a new texture and experience. Moreover, she extended her artistic practice from the studio to the exhibition arena, finally setting up works and spaces as a unique and comprehensive locale and a "site of labor" carefully managed.

'Flesh in Stone-Components #3' in the exhibition was one such new work in this series; the bust with the plaster model stands on a tripod studio table, reminding one of the artist's presence and tactility in sculptural creation. Head appeared in the 'Flesh in Stone' series for the first time, and the size of this head was much larger than the torsos in the series. For Yu Ji, this spherical sculpture of head commands the body and the its movements, standing for the vast universe and machine of time.

The commissioned on-site installation 'Etudes- Lento IV' was composed of 250 kilograms of rusted iron chains which were previously used to join the iron anchor of a ship, 60 kilograms of colophony, and dozens of kilograms of putting. The work connected up heavy, oppressively large volumes with sturdy iron chains, and yet brought forth a movement, with simple, fragile characteristics through the colophony and resin. These materials of very distinctive qualities, were merged sculpturally by the artist, letting the natural light moving through the air crystalized in the piece. The more one observed the work from different angles, the more one realized the complexity of its structure and the wealth of its materials.

于吉的創作通過雕塑、行為和影像等媒材展開，材料始終扮演著關鍵角色。作品中使用的水泥、木材、金屬、膠質等材料都帶有各自明確的性格、質感和溫度，它們彼此打磨、碰撞、談判乃至對峙，從而結合併達成一致。本次展覽中，于吉實驗性地使用了透明度和韌性豐富的塑料材料對作品進行連接和包裹，創造新的肌理和體驗。此外，于吉將創作實踐從工作室延伸到了展覽現場，最將作品與空間佈局為一個獨特而整體的場域與精心處理的「勞動現場」。

《練習曲—慢板樂章IV》由250公斤生鏽鐵鍊（用於連接船上的鐵錨）、60公斤松香和幾十斤油灰打造而成。但是這些沈重的材料在於空間的鏈接中被消解。于吉通過雕塑手段使這三種屬性各異的材料在空間與作品之間發生作用，喚醒空氣的透明，和自然光線的運動軌跡，從不同角度去觀看這件作品，便會愈發認識到它結構的複雜和材料的豐富。

Prec(ar)ious Collectives

Palais de Tokyo and Le Pavillon Neuflyze OBC, 23 Akadimias Street, Athens, Greece
由東京宮及納夫立茲創意實驗室舉辦，位於希臘雅典Akadimias街23號

06.04.2017 - 12.04.2017

In the program 'Prec(ar)ious Collectives', co-presented by Pavillion Neuflyze OBC, Palais de Tokyo, and Fluxum Foundation/ Flux Laboratory in Athens, Yu Ji presented four works in total: 'Oliv! Oliv!'; 'Lycabettus Tongue', 'Pyrus Communis Issue I', and a performance. The three object-based works predominantly involved found objects, together forming a coherent narrative that dealt with the notion of locality in relation to the body, and indirectly, to the grandiose theme of "Learning from Athens." Occupying the space with lampshades, iron chains, old mirrors, rocks, and dead agave leaves — even a newspaper designed and created by the artist herself for the occasion — everything in the space verged of becoming "found" within this context, grafted onto each other, and onto the architecture of the building in which the exhibition and performance took place.

在由巴黎東京宮納夫立茲創意實驗室 (Pavillon Neuflyze OBC) 與 Fluxum 基金會和 Flux 實驗室合作的全新項目 Prec(ar)ious Collectives 中，于吉一共呈現了四件作品：《奧利弗！奧利弗！》、《呂卡維多斯舌頭》、《Pyrus Communis Issue I》以及一場表演。前三件實物作品主要以現成物組成，三者共同構建起關於身體之地域性的連貫敘述，並間接地呼應了「向雅典學習」的宏大主題。燈罩、鐵鍊、舊鏡子、岩石、枯萎的龍舌蘭葉子、甚至包括藝術家特地為此設計製作的報紙——這個空間中的所有物件都在此情境中快將成為「現成品」。它們彼此嫁接，進而又併入這個展覽和表演場所的建築結構之中。

Why Not Ask Again: Arguments, Counter-arguments, and Stories
11th Shanghai Biennale

「何不再問：正辯，反辯，故事」，第十一屆上海雙年展

Power Station of Art Shanghai, China

12.11.2016 - 12.03.2017

On the occasion of Yu Ji's commissioned project for the 11th Shanghai Biennale, she chose to produce her site-specific work outside, in a space that was separated from the main exhibition hall on the second floor of the museum parking garage. She turned the entire garage into both the context and the place of origin for her work. The works are spread over an area of nearly 300 square-meters, and involve multiple mediums, including sound, sculpture, installation, and prints, which were for the most part created and produced on site. The semi-outdoor concrete environment of the parking lot — with the sparse and awkward nature of its surroundings — made the work resonate in a frail and self-derisive way. Due to its design flaw, the parking garage ultimately could not be used for its original purpose, and had therefore been turned into both a place to park the museum staff's non-motorized vehicles, and a gigantic work area to prepare exhibitions. Yu Ji viewed this space not only as an enormous container for human labor and production, but also a roaring urban predator.

The work was dispersed all throughout the space, while the pieces belonged to three main categories: detritus collected on location that was probably used in the preparation of other various exhibitions; building debris picked up in demolition sites around the city, and discarded everyday household items; and finally, Yu Ji's unfinished, rejected, or damaged figurative sculptures. All these complex materials, loaded with meaning, were enveloped in the resonance of an uninterrupted roar — sound emitted by volcanoes located north of Taipei, which was recorded by the artist in 2015. These objects all attempted to press themselves onto a stage full of quiet serenity. As for the growing moss, the rotting pears and apples, or the dark blue water surface that trembled to low-frequency sound waves, all of which the visitors encountered throughout the space, they all became actors on that stage. Here is a space where life encountered death. All was wreckage, and yet full of hidden vitality.
